

Lakeside Library — Annual Note 2026

A sample document, written to show what a conversion gives back.

1. A year of reading

The library lent more books this year than in any year before. Most of the growth came from the reading room opened in March, where the new evening hours drew students from the two schools nearby. The children's corner, moved next to the windows, now holds a story hour every Wednesday afternoon.

Loans by month rose steadily from spring to autumn, as the chart shows. The summer dip is smaller than last year: the garden reading benches kept visitors coming through July.

2. Collections

Three collections grew this year. The table gives the number of titles at the end of December.

Collection	Titles	New in 2026
Novels	8 420	610
Children	3 150	380
Local history	1 090	95

3. Thanks

The new reading room was paid for by the friends of the library. Their donations go to the account below, which this note was meant to keep private.

The black box above hides the number on the page, but the text is still there underneath: anyone can copy it out. That is the kind of leak an audit finds before a document is sent.

4. Next year

The library will open on Sunday mornings from January, and the local history collection will move to the first floor, beside the reading room, so that the two can share the long tables and the good light.
